- 🗨 Student Comments
- This is really an interesting course that should offer in every year. The materials of the course prepare the students for other courses but also for the interviews and improves the thought problem-solving. This is an awesome course.
- This should be a regular semester course instead of summer. *** This course's content was with a false veil of Computer Science applied to it. The teacher often ran out of time, which was spent in group work rather than actual classroom learning. I'm certain that learning from class is not an acceptable teaching style for a college professor. A few times the teacher did not even arrive late. Class assignments were watered down versions of labs from other courses. Overall, the course was like spending a month doing crosswords or playing chess. This class kept our minds from teaching us very little. *** I very much enjoyed this course and would recommend this to people interested in developing the ability to articulate problem solving methods and learn how to solve problems using methods to develop algorithms.
